FOREWORD

Fundamentally, all formal education exists as two distinct levels of experience. To facilitate understanding, the first phase of learning exposes the student to basic theoretical concepts of life in an organized society. Then, as a natural expansion beyond mere ideas, the second stage offers practical participation in activities that simulate actual problems and conditions of adult life. Therefore, solely by knowing and by doing can the student develop any definite objectives and values for which he can strive; solely by knowing and by doing can he not only make a good living but also enjoy a good life.

Realizing that society requires active involvement in every aspect of its affairs, the Westmont Hilltop Board of Education has sought to provide a school whose atmosphere and curricula approximate, on a small scale, life after graduation. Toward this goal, it has created the opportunity for the growth of various clubs, organizations, and activities that are adapted to the needs of the present and the demands of the future.

To fulfill the purposes of a yearbook — to provide a timeless remembrance of school life and to present a lucid picture-record of all that composes one school year — the staff of the 1966 Phoenician offers to the students of Westmont Hilltop Senior High School their book in the sincere hope that they will someday proudly declare, "Here is how and where I learned."

PHOENICIAN DEDICATION

To effect the utmost progress in the student's educational development, a teacher must function as more than a mere proctor. His devotion must be limitless; his personal involvement, deep and extensive; his leadership, inspiring. In fact, since the enduring value of any formal education depends primarily on the quality of instruction, a teacher's contribution is not only important but is paramount to the ultimate achievements of the student. Therefore, recognition is here extended to one who has helped create for Westmont Hilltop Senior High School the prestige that it now possesses in the community of schools. With pride and gratitude, the staff of the 1966 Phoenician dedicates its book to a teacher, coach, advisor—Mr. William Askey.

Not only a good living but a good life

Administration

The responsibility for establishing excellence throughout a school system is shared by the Board of Education, the administration, and the faculty. Initially, the Board of Education must formulate broad plans, general goals, and basic policies—guides toward the realization of the educational ideal. In addition to these supervisory functions, the Board must also provide the necessary buildings and other facilities and select the administrative and teaching staffs.

Continuing the program begun by the Board, the administration presides over the daily business operations of a complex enterprise, executes the formal policies that the Board has determined, and, when unexpected or unfamiliar problems develop, adapts the general rules to each individual situation. Likewise, as a practical liaison between the Board and the faculty, the administration interprets attitudes and communicates the decisions. In this way, a pleasant, efficient atmosphere, devoid of conflicts among faculty, students, or both, dominates the actual school situation. Therefore, the prime duty of the administration is to coordinate effectively all aspects of the educational process.

The final stage in this process involves the purpose for which the entire structure exists—the education of the whole student. Here, at last, the abstract principles and the extensive preparation personally affect the student, through the vital services performed by the faculty. However, to fulfill its responsibility of providing instruction, advice, counsel, leadership, and inspiration, the faculty must possess certain knowledge and skills that are prerequisites for employment by Westmont. As a testament to these abilities of the faculty of Westmont Hilltop, a catalogue of qualifications appears below.

hard work

Although the faculty, cooperating with the Board of Education and the administration, effects the actual educating of the student; nevertheless, other employees are also essential to the operation of the school system. Unfortunately, these additional people, despite qualifications, responsibilities, and performance, seldom achieve recognition because their work seems separated from the direct educational process. However, their unnoticed contributions sustain the entire institution.

Mrs. Alwine and Mrs. Bates, administrative secretaries, supervise records and bookkeeping, maintain correspondence, and fulfill the tedious demands of office work. Also, Mr. Goodwin, the school dietician, directs a cafeteria staff which prepares and serves lunches for ever-complaining individuals. Similarly, Mr. Moors and the custodians must clean the building, groom the grounds—inspire a pleasant atmosphere. This unappreciated dedication emphasizes the value of the service personnel.

MRS. MEREDITH expertly conducts a World History lecture for sophomore students.

A BALANCE BEAM ROUTINE, supervised by Miss Blair, demands concentration from Lynn Straitiff and Lori Bittner.

HYLA BASSEL IS RELUCTANT to join Art Goldman in a dissecting experiment.

New experience in learning

As new arrivals in the high school, the sophomores conform to traditions established by the upperclassmen. Now, during their year of adjustment, they must balance and coordinate the many aspects of their school life—extra-curricular, social, academic.

With the quiet and leisurely life of a freshman becoming a fond memory, the sophomores discover that the reality of long, hard study dominates their new experience. Subjects intended to prepare them for life must be dealt with seriously. Late hours of typing themes and completing assignments are soon a habit rather than a possibility. Even required reading expands to astounding proportions. However, despite such a heavy burden of classroom-oriented work, the sophomores still supplement it with distinctive elective programs and enjoyable social activities.

Confronted by strange, difficult problems that demand wisdom and mature judgment, the sophomores slowly develop familiarity with the responsibilities of high school life. They respond with resiliency to the challenge and prove their worth and leadership ability, as they follow the path of their predecessors.

FOR A HEALTH CLASS in anatomy, Jackie Hartnett and Margaret McAlister study the structure of the body.

MR. ANTHONY shows two students, Alan Lichtenfels and Ed Klein, how to find the volume of a cylinder.

SOPHOMORE STUDENTS use their homeroom period to complete forgotten homework and to review for tests.

Mature attitude toward study

Schooled in the art of effective study by a harrowing sophomore year, the juniors easily settle into a brisk schedule of activities within the school community. In spite of the necessity for increased effort on their part, they display a mature willingness to expand their spheres of interest beyond those things which are merely required by school policy. Behind every experience now is the students' awareness of the permanent importance of their education.

Harder, more specialized courses; more complicated, thorough assignments; eligibility for driver's training and the National Honor Society; first frightening exposure to College Board Examinations or to future job considerations—these many responsibilities peculiar to a critically decisive junior year demand the utmost of concentration and judgement, if the promise of graduation is to be realized.

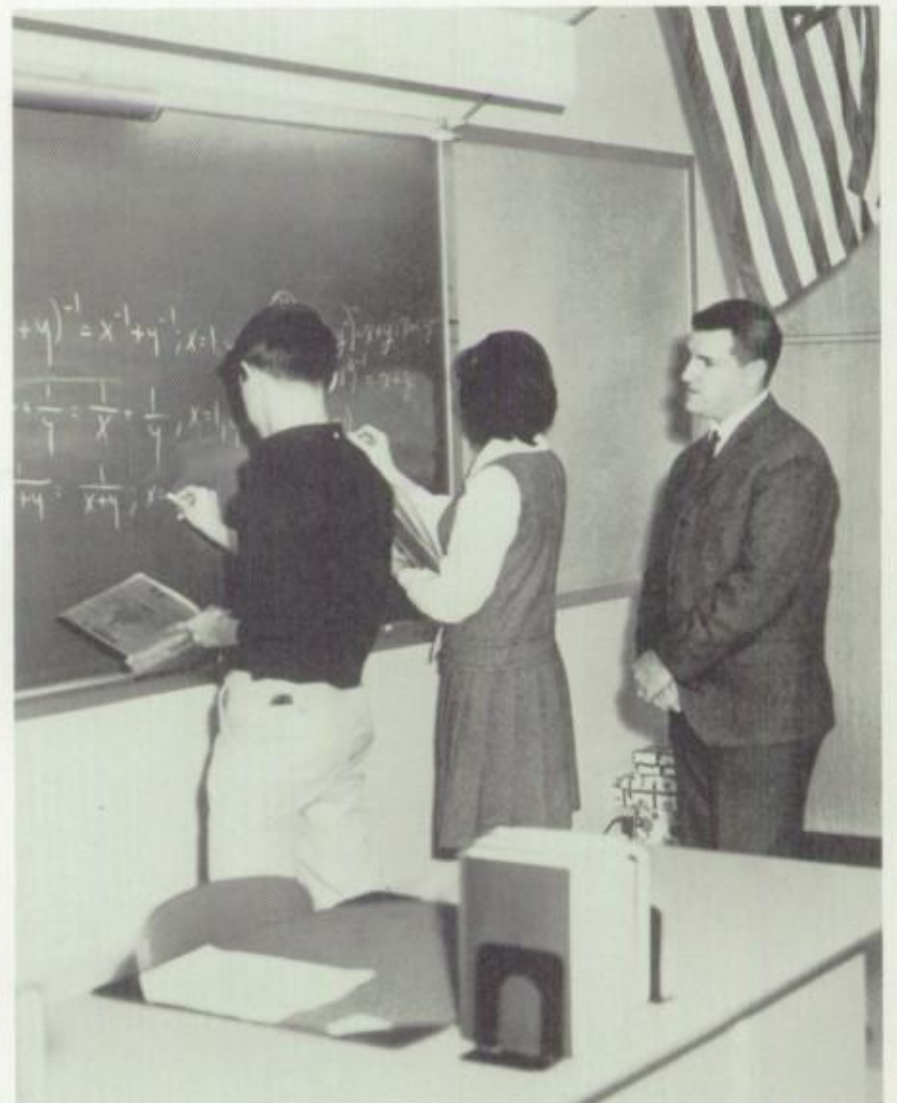

In order to achieve a measure of success in all of their activities—both those of only present value and those of great future value—the juniors strive to reveal and to develop their latent abilities; they possess a definite tendency toward hard work and mature understanding.

QUESTIONING JO SICILIANO, Mr. Mostoller discovers how carefully she has read her extra-credit book.

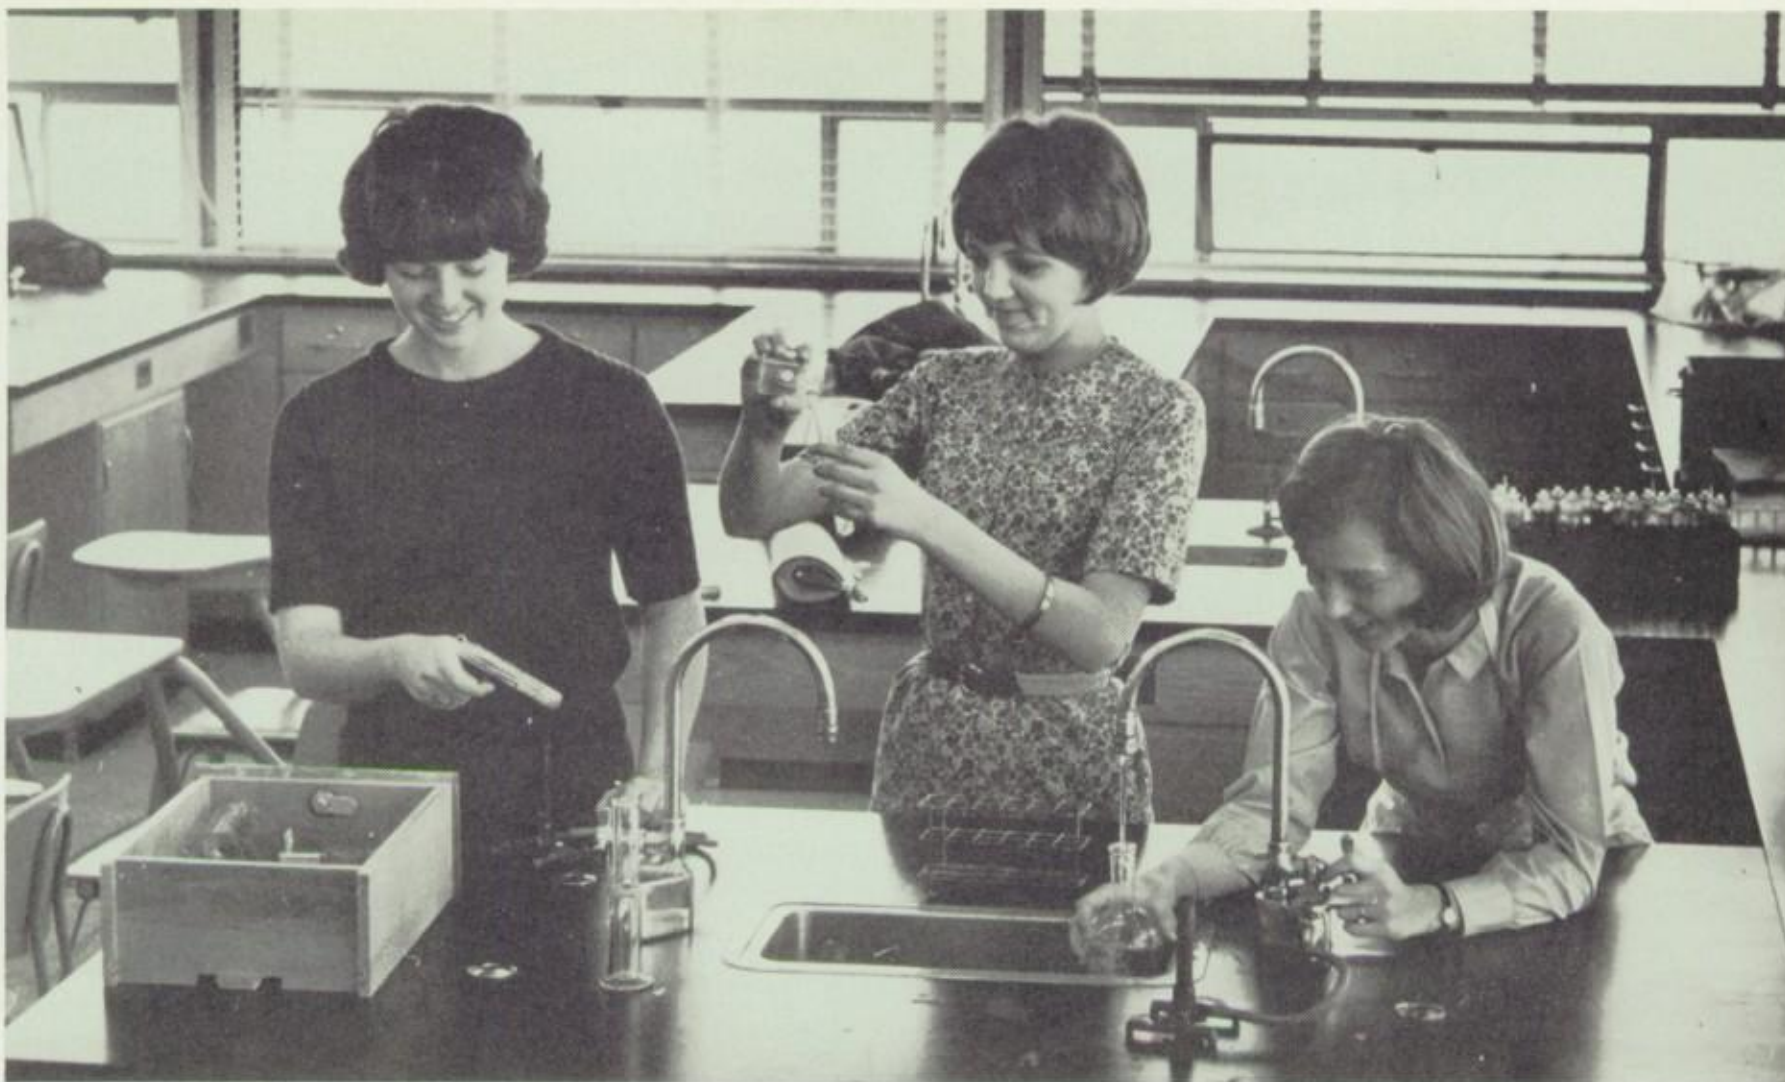

JUNIOR STUDENTS are educated in traffic laws in their Safety Education class.

Mr. HUNTER explains the right solutions to Dale Swaney and Diane Weigle.

KATHY REIGHARD AND BEV GEORG hope to complete their chemistry experiment, but Karen Goggin prepares to "douse" the Bunsen burner with a flask of water.

MR. KNAPP CLARIFIES the meanings of several vocabulary words for doubtful Colleen Coyle.

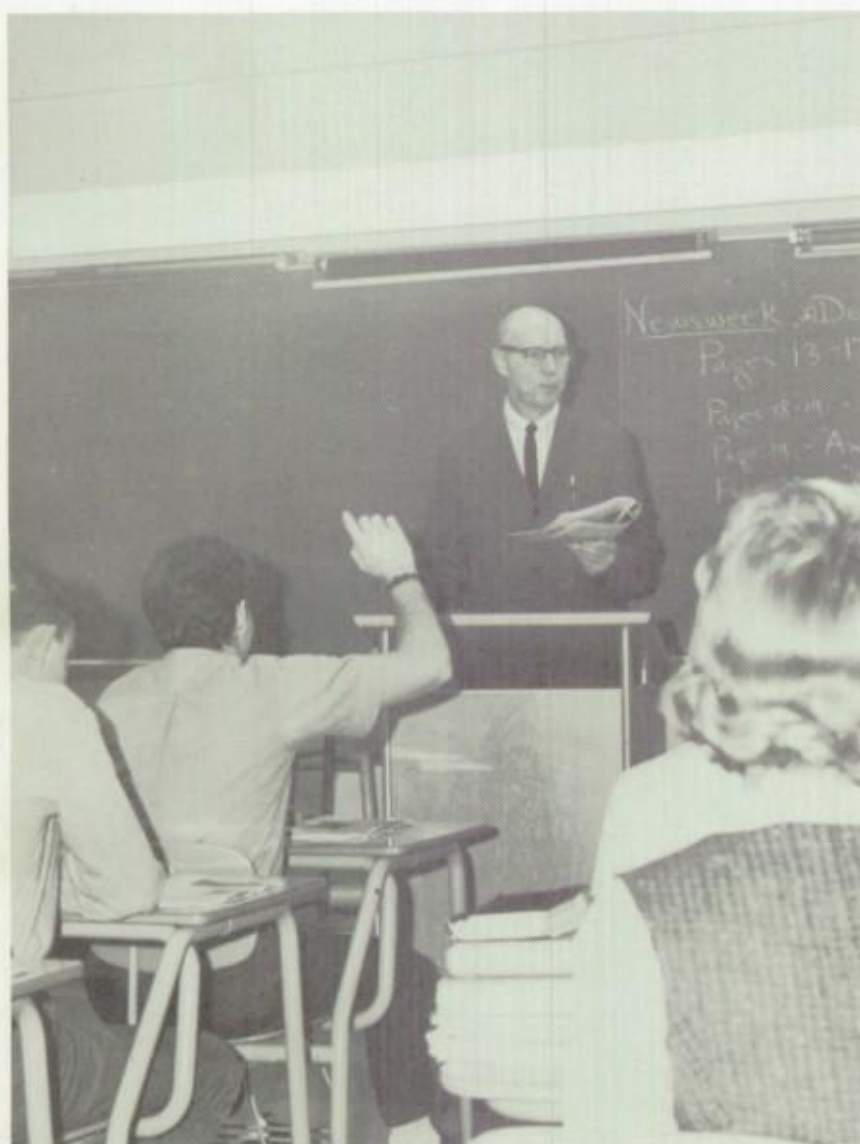

A SHORTHAND DRILL occupies the minds of Darlene Gillin, Karen Jacoby, and Barbara Feathers.

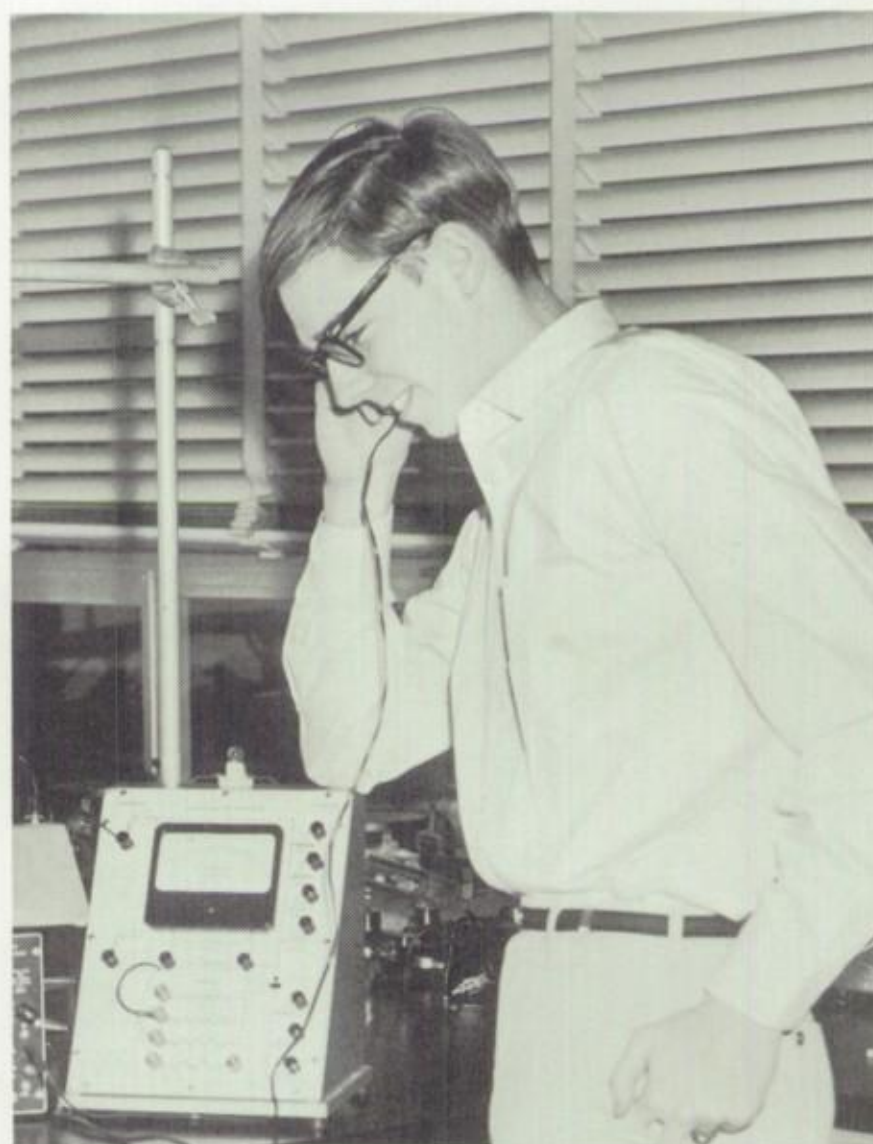

THE LANGUAGE LAB offers valuable speaking experience to Miss Key's French IV students.

LARRY OBER questions Mr. Mannion about an article in Newsweek magazine.

JON HUSTON gathers data for a lab experiment in Physics.

Serious evaluation of objectives

Finally, as they eagerly begin the last of their twelve, or more, years of public education, the seniors entertain a vague but pleasant hope that this year will escape somehow from the rigid pattern established during previous years. However, the rude and revolting truth is that nothing essential has improved—things have become even worse!

Rather than diminishing in either number or intensity, problems and responsibilities have multiplied beyond reasonable proportions and into the kingdom of absurdity. Of course, these difficulties are a mere annoyance to the mighty intellects of Westmont, who simply solve their problems out of existence. Such astute resourcefulness!

Also, since they have become members of a select clique dedicated to intense activity, late hours, and FUN, the seniors wearily re-evaluate their standard of values. This objective study of personal and social life leads ideally to stability and strength. Congratulations to Westy philosophers!

Therefore, as commencement steadily looms larger on the school scene, the class of 1966 anxiously awaits "Diploma Day," when they abandon high school life for more of the same either in college or in the "outside world."

SENIOR STUDENTS—Ruth Ann Peterson, Sue Shaffer, and Sue Smith—researching their senior themes.

CHARLIE TUMMINO IS AMAZED that Suzy Hatch does the problem correctly.

MRS. ROBINE OFFERS ADVICE while Phyllis Reiking operates the key punch.

Broad opportunity for expansion

To supplement rather limited curricular courses, Westmont has developed an extensive extra-curricular program that is groomed to the tastes of a diverse student body. By this method of offering specialized study on a basis of voluntary enrollment, the universal need to pursue individual interests can be suitably satisfied.

Essentially, the strength and success of the combined electives-activities program depends wholly upon the quantity and the quality of support that issues from the student body. However, because only those students who are sincerely interested in deeper, directed study bother to enroll, dynamic leadership and vigorous personal involvement have become almost commonplace; and the program perpetuates itself through a process that is comparable to on-the-job training of new members.

Consequently, not only does the program satisfy the students' immediate demands for stimulating study; but also, as these students begin to implement the training and knowledge that they have gained, the program indirectly enriches the entire community.

AN INDUSTRIAL ARTS STUDENT skillfully operates the circular saw as he completes his project.

BARBARA ANTINORO AND TOM KEIFER steal a quiet moment in the doorway of a classroom.

The time that a Westmont student spends outside of school gives him added benefits and pleasures that in-school activities cannot. It gives him a chance to work and gain experience in various fields, to do what he wants to do. However, perhaps the most important advantage of his outside activities is that they enable him to learn to live with his fellowman. Life is people; we must all learn to live with others and ourselves. Today's student is tomorrow's leader; to lead well, he must know how to get along with the other person.

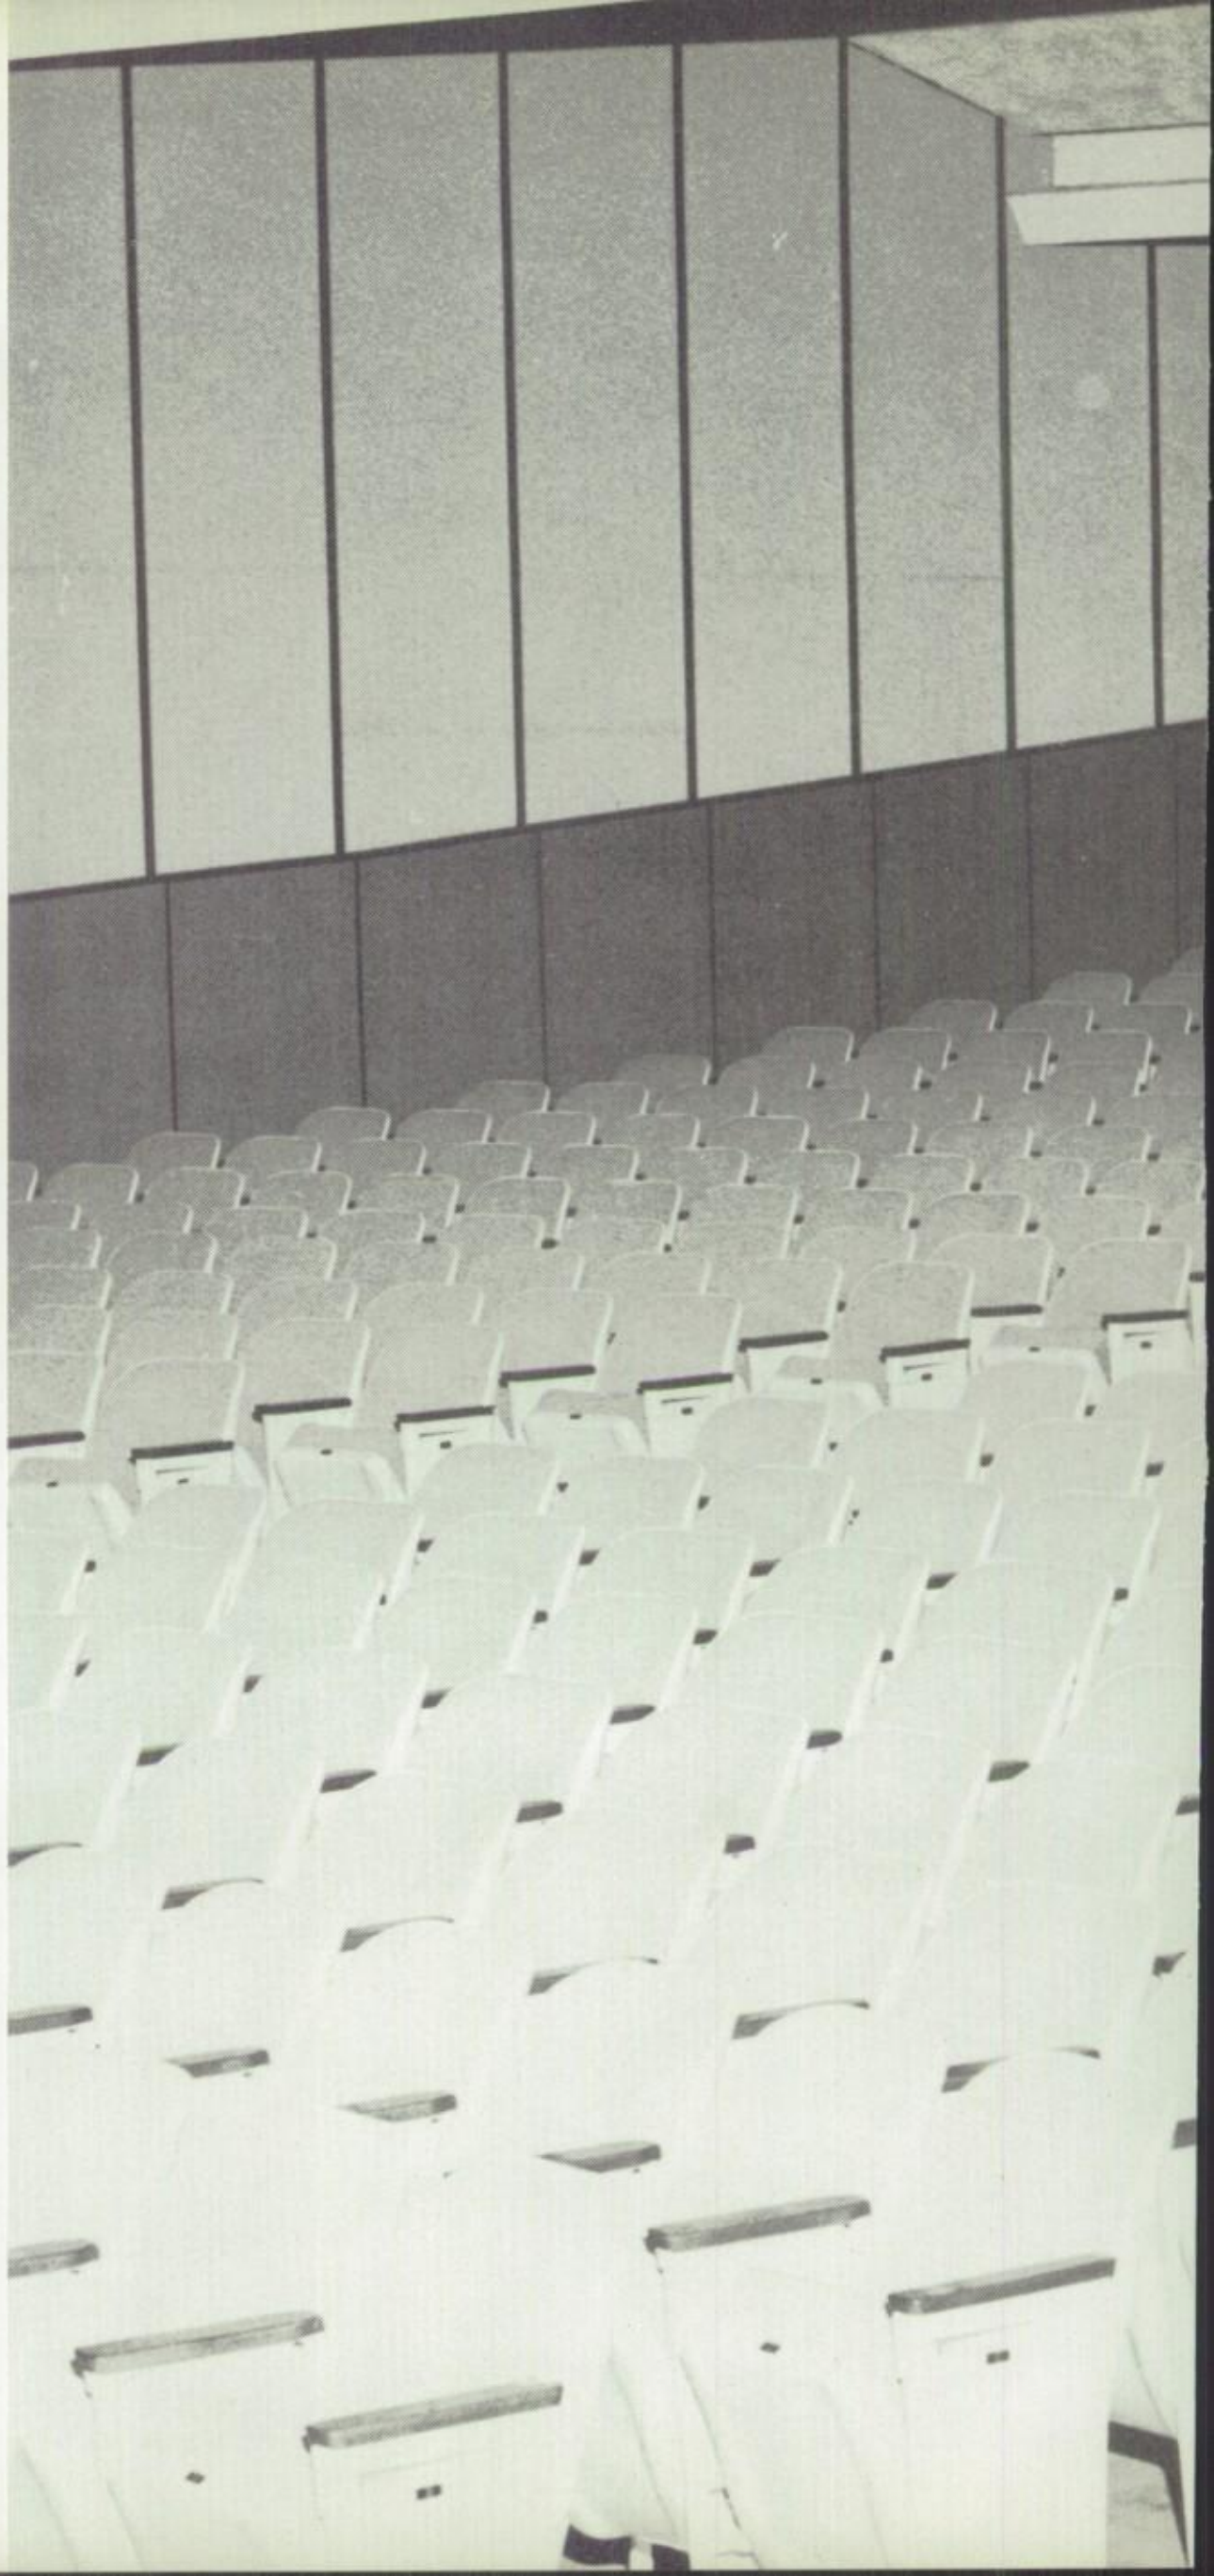

A DAY AT HATCH'S FARM is one that can never be forgotten.

Westy's sophomore faces a year of adjustment, challenge, excitement, and fun. Fortunately, most sophomores regard the adjustments to the new building, the new courses, and the new rules as necessary and even enjoyable encounters.

Then, with a wide variety of courses to choose from, the sophomore quickly realizes the importance of the guidance department in helping him make his academic decisions.

However, when a sophomore is not adjusting or working or deciding, he is more than likely just having fun. An enormous variety of activities and sports, as well as school dances and plays, provides him with ample opportunity to enjoy his school life.

At the end of the year, a sophomore can look back on a year of excitement and fun and look forward to an even more adventurous year ahead.

Westy's junior is "in between"—definitely above the "lowly" sophomore but slightly below the "mighty" senior. Thus while the confusion of the sophomore year is over, the "adventure" of the senior year has not yet begun. Seemingly ceaseless studying and testing occupy a large part of this junior year. However, the junior year is a memorable one. Driving proves a formidable challenge for many; the Junior Play, a marvelous success; and of course the prom, a night to remember. Preparing for the future makes the junior year one of challenge, excitement, and fun.

proclaim victory

Neither summer practice nor sore muscles nor slight differences of opinion could dampen the enthusiasm of Hilltop's 1965-66 Varsity cheerleading squad. The appreciation of Westy's team members, students, and faculty compensated for the discomfort of long, hot practices and the nights when the girls led cheers in the rain and cold.

When anyone thinks of cheerleading, his thoughts naturally turn to the cheerleading contest, held annually at the War Memorial. Our squad, led by Co-captains Gerrie Tiffany and Kathy Owen, worked many hard hours to perfect PROCLAIM VICTORY, this year's contest cheer. With this excellent cheer and the support of the Pep Clubs, Westmont captured fourth place.

Also deserving recognition is the Junior Varsity cheerleading squad. Composed of sophomores and juniors, the squad performed well their duties of cheering the Junior Varsity football and basketball teams to victory. They also led our wrestlers to a successful Varsity season at home and at away matches as well as at the District Six, Section Four wrestling competition. It is plain to see that these girls are our future Varsity cheerleaders.

The efforts of advisor Miss Ginger Blair accounted for the extra drive and influence needed to make this year's Varsity and Junior Varsity cheerleading squads the best ever.

Westy completes

The season is long. The hours of practice and the effort expended are exhausting. From the time that the first practice session is called in late August until the final whistle is blown ending the last game of the season in late October, football demands the utmost effort from the players and the coaches. All who have participated in the game have contributed to the school. All who have participated have learned a greater sense of responsibility and value.

When the season is over, an evaluation is made—wins and losses. Last year only the loss of the first game at Cresson marred the record. Eight wins followed. This year, after six more consecutive wins, only Windber and Somerset were able to defeat Westmont. A two-year record of fifteen wins and only three losses is a tribute to the coaching staff and the team. Experience and hard work are rewarded. What are these rewards? That feeling of pride as you break the run-through, the cheers from the spectators, and the knowledge that the whole school is behind you.

Westmont Hilltop Junior Varsity Football Squad completed another great season with four victories, one tie, and one defeat. The defeat was at the hands of Somerset.

This season saw clean, hard football played by sophomore and junior boys with prospects for a varsity position next year. Like the Varsity squad, the J.V.'s suffered through heat and cold, nervousness, pre-game jitters, and the customary bruises and sprains that are always a part of games and practices.

Although the competition was tough, the J.V.'s used fine coaching and teamwork to pull them through. Our Junior Varsity squad showed its prowess as a future league leader.

cross country meets

Any sport that must compete with football for the spectators' attention is placed in an unfavorable position. Although other activities draw more support, the effort expended by the boy participating in cross country is equal to, or greater than, the effort expended by the participant in any other athletic event. The cross country runner must maintain a continuing effort for a distance of more than two miles—no time outs, no substitutions. He is on his own.

This is the fifth year that Coach Mollura has directed the teams that have represented Westmont in cross country meets. This year's record book shows no wins, but written within the pages is the story of a team that put forth its best effort and did produce individual winners.

Building a team around the returning lettermen, Coach Mollura will produce winning teams as well as winning individuals.

The tone of the entire basketball season could be characterized by two simple terms—"settling in" and "building." As might be expected, this transitional period, led by returning letterman Doug Svitchan, Elmer Laslo, Tom Bright, Jim Falcone, and Bill Jones, did not produce an especially outstanding record—six wins and fourteen losses; but the great effort and responsibility involved in these processes of development easily compensated for a disappointing record.

Under the whip of the new but resourceful Coach Bolha, the team sought to achieve a workable relationship of trust and communication between the squad and its leader. However, success was not immediate since much of the season had passed before "things began to click" for the hard-working varsity.

Also, because of his lack of experience with the team, Coach Bolha emphasized growth for the future rather than impossible hopes for immediate triumph. Therefore, the Junior Varsity squad saw more action and labored under greater pressure than is usual; but in true Westmont style, the squad reacted with hustle and determination.

Although the record seemed unworthy of a Westy team, the apparently poor season misrepresented the effort and spirit of the players who bravely returned game after game to fight again. Regardless of the results, the basketball teams deserved the admiration and gratitude of the school for their reliability and "guts."

TOM BRIGHT EXECUTES A LAY-UP SHOT to widen Westy's margin by two points.

The year 1965-66 brought Westmont the best Varsity Wrestling record ever compiled. As a result of the hard practice, an all-for-one attitude, and the superior coaching of Mr. Knapp and Mr. Puhala, the squad finished the season with five wins and six losses.

In addition to a memorable record, the wrestlers contributed many tense moments and close matches to Westmont's sports history. Also, they displayed remarkable spirit and aggressiveness despite a long, tough schedule.

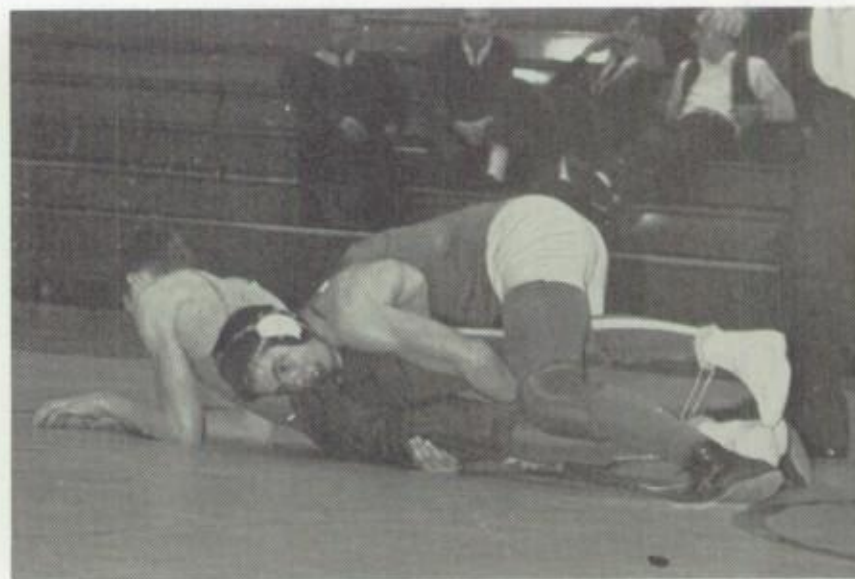

Several wrestlers distinguished themselves not only as members of the team, but also as exceptional individual successes. Mike Hughes was undefeated with a ten and zero record; Barney Lovette produced a seven, one, and three record; and Ben Kohlhepp gathered nine wins with only two losses.

Barney Lovette, in the 103-pound class, and Mike Hughes, in the 180-pound class, were champions in both the Conemaugh Township Christmas Tournament and the District Six, Section Four wrestling competition.

Returning next year to improve their records as the seasoned nucleus of a potentially great team are Marty Torledsky, John Wilson, Barney Lovette, Ben Kohlhepp, Joe Pastovic, and Nunzio Pagano.

CRUSHING A bewildered Altoona boy to the mat, Don Fetterolf insures another victory.

THE END IS close at hand for a Ferndale fish — again Andy Kohlhepp turns his opponent into a puppet.

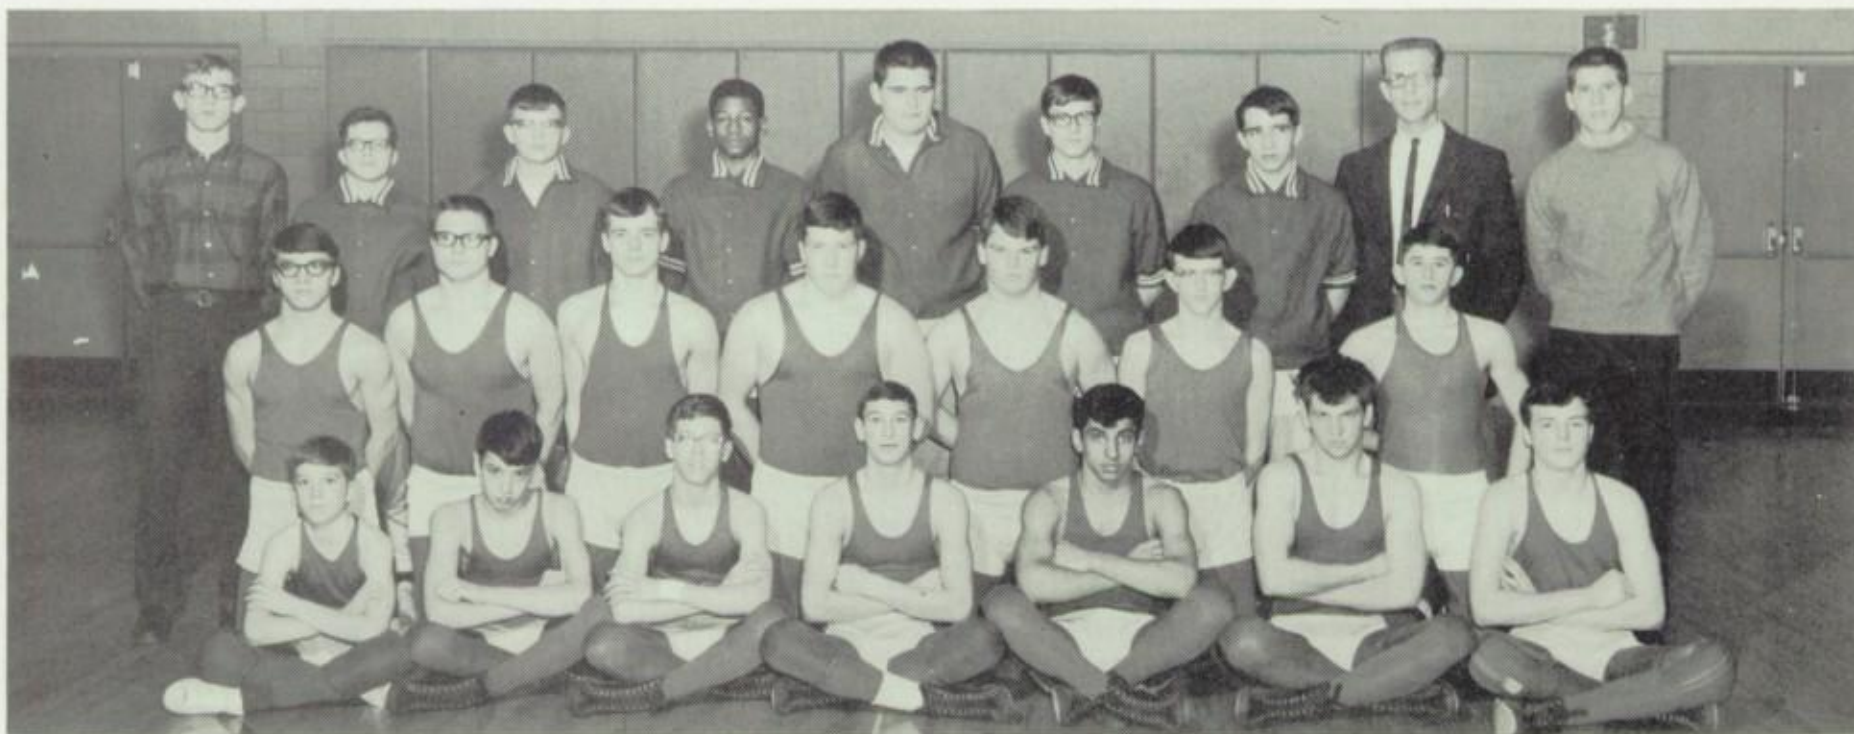

In an exciting season that coincided directly with the Varsity team's surge to prominence, the Junior Varsity Wrestling squad masterfully defeated nine opponents while they were only surpassed by two. One reason for this successful performance was the excellent records earned by the following members of the squad: Gary Holsopple, six wins and one loss; Andy Kohlhepp, nine wins and two losses; and Tom Pastovic, with six wins, no losses, and three ties.

To gain skill and experience, to enjoy the thrill of competition, and to build good sportsmanship, the J. V. team is necessary for the successors to the present team. Perhaps this need for pre-training indicates the advantage of the Junior High wrestling program that Westmont sorely lacks.

Nevertheless, this Junior Varsity team demonstrates what can be accomplished when potential, coaching, and teamwork meet in an atmosphere of determination.

The 1966 track season brought Coach Pete Mollura a strong nucleus of returning seniors and juniors. The cinderman settled down to the kind of work that payed dividends in the form of points. The team worked toward perfecting their form and building their strength, balance, and co-ordination.

The MOMEN were not prominent in field events this year. Therefore, Coach Mollura relied heavily on two of his distance runners, Pat Docherty and Jeff Deardorff, who placed first and third respectively in the 880-yard run in the P. I. A. A. State meet.

Perhaps the most outstanding event of this season was the two-mile relay. The relay team, composed of four fine distance runners—Jeff Deardorff, Tim Weaver, Pat Docherty, and Jim Suchman—won first place honors and the opportunity to compete in the P.I.A.A. State meet. The fast foursome set a District 6 Record in the two-mile relay, proudly bringing Westmont their District 6 trophy.

JIM HOCKEY AND JIM FALCONE warm up before a game.

Westy's baseball team had a fine 8 and 2 record, capturing second place in the Tri-County League.

The team was led by the excellent hitting of Frank Sowa, (500), Kevin Pile (485), and Jim Hockey (470). Right-hander Ron Matolyak strengthened the team with his 4 and 0 pitching record. Also compiling good pitching records were Ray Benshoff (3-0) and Doug Svitchan (1-2).

Although the team will lose ten players from the graduating class, Coach Balogh is sure that next year's team will be as successful as the team of '66.

The golf team is a winner

A sport that needs more support at Westmont is the game of golf. It is interesting and fun to watch, bringing just as many tense moments as other sports. There is the thrill of a hole-in-one and waiting for the big putt.

Westmont's golf team performed excellently in representing our school this season. With only one returning golfer, Brian Castelli, the team formed into a winning combination. Compiling an outstanding record of nine wins, one loss, and one tie, the team had only one major setback. It was the Dr. George Wheeling Scholastic Invitational Tournament. They placed second and relinquished a six-year reign as champion of the tournament.

Although losing three senior golfers, Brian Castelli, Lee Beerman, and Phil Holtzman, other outstanding team members such, as Skip Smyth, Tom Bremer, and Jim Mitchell, will return to uphold Westmont's reputation of championship golf.

Although the tennis teams have constantly been plagued by unsuccessful seasons—this year is no exception—for once the future seems very promising. One may wonder how a season record of five loses and no wins forecasts a bright future. All one has to remember is that this year's team consisted of one senior, seven sophomores, and one freshman. The leading scorers were Allan Brett and Ed Klein.

Building around the nucleus of these young but now experienced players, Westmont's tennis future is indeed bright.

ALMA MATER

Dear Alma Mater
 We sing of you—
 Sing of your kindness,
 Your power to woo.
 We glory in your name
 Your Works to view,
 Dear Alma Mater,
 We sing to you.

Dear Alma Mater
 We sing to you—
 Pledging our loyalty,
 Our views renew.
 Your name we'll ever love
 Your precepts true,
 Dear Alma Mater
 We sing to you.

STARDUST bursts across

On November 20, 1965, the senior class, under the direction of Mr. R. Clawson, presented the comedy STARDUST. Mr. Clawson was aided by student directors, Mary Lou McCauliff and Patty Vanyo, and prompters, Jane Hess and Bette McCauliff. The cast included:

DONNA PERRY .....	PRUDENCE MASON
BARBARA GREGORY .....	CLAIRE CARTER
MICHAEL EDELSTEIN .....	MR. BACH
NANCY YEAGER .....	DEAN OF WOMEN
RAYMOND BASTKOWSKI .....	JERRY FLANAGAN
KEVIN BISSONETTE .....	ARTHUR SCOTT, JR.
SUSANNA SMITH .....	JANET ROSS
PATRICK KUBEJA .....	PHIL FORD
GAIL GREENBERG .....	MARION PHIPPS
JOHN STIBICH .....	JOHN REDMAN
CAROL SALEM .....	CYNTHIA KEENE
JON HUSTON .....	RAYMUND BROWN
PAULI OVERDORFF .....	MAVIS MORTUARY
JOHN PENSINGER .....	TAD VOORHIS
MARY ANN NOVAK .....	STELLA BRAHMS
MARGARET CONDO .....	MISS FREEMAN
LINDA KLEIN .....	MISS ROBINSON
CASSIE PALMER .....	MISS JONES

DRAMA CLASS STUDENTS listen to Barbara Gregory expressing her views as a visitor.

RAY BASTKOWSKI looks on as Barbara Gregory calls Nancy Yeager on the carpet.

PAT KUBEJA does not understand the feelings of Sue Smith.

Spring Cotillion

The background of Sunnehanna Country Club was the setting for the 1966 Junior-Senior Prom. The name Spring Cotillion was given to the mid-victorian atmosphere of gaiety and splendor. The music was provided by the Continentals.

enchants all

The Post-Prom party was held at Sunnehanna Country Club also. Swimming and dancing with music provided by the Off-Beats kept the party going strong until dawn. The 1966 prom will definitely be remembered by all who attended.

Some people call it graduation. For some it is an ending, a solemn close to friendship and memories and years gone by. Others call it commencement. For these it is a beginning, the birth of a new and exciting experience in a bright future.

For all it is a change; a change filled with depths of personal feeling, filled as these halls once were with the laughter of uncertainty and the gaiety of challenge.
